Get the information you need from a source you can trust!

Since 1978, NARIC has acted as the library for the Department of Education's National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research (NIDRR). NARIC staff collect and disseminate the results of NIDRR-funded research, as well as a broad spectrum of commercial and non-commercial disability and rehabilitation research. NARIC's collection contains more than 60,000 documents, a significant portion of which are not available elsewhere.

In addition, NARIC produces the NIDRR Program Database, an annual directory of more than 300 projects funded by NIDRR. This directory is available to the public through NARIC's award winning website at www.naric.com.

Rehabilitation professionals, students, researchers, and consumers know NARIC is a trusted source of information and referral. Our experienced information specialists can help you find the information you need!

RESEARCHERS

What is the latest research in...?

REHABDATA is the premier index of disability and rehabilitation research. It contains more than 60,000 abstracts of articles, books, reports, curricula, and audio-visual materials. The database is available online through naric.com. Or, if you prefer, call and talk to an information specialist about a customized database search. This service, as well as document delivery, are available for nominal fees.

CONSUMERS

My husband had a stroke and needs rehabilitation. Are there facilities near me?

I was injured and can't do my job anymore. Where can I get retrained? What other assistance is available?

Every day, NARIC's Information Specialists assist people with disabilities, their families and friends, and the health professionals who serve them to find state and federal agencies, national organizations, and local support to help them toward independence.

The same databases we use for referrals are also available online through naric.com.
